Amnesty Offered Here For Welfare Fraud

An amnesty program for persons committing welfare fraud will be offered in Crawford County May 9 to June 10.

The amnesty program is open to anyone receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC), food stamps, general assistance, or Medicaid benefits they are not entitled to. The Crawford County Prosecuting Attorney's office recently charged 11 local persons in 8 cases of alleged welfare fraud involving $12,202 in benefits.

If a person turns him or her self in during the amnesty period, they only have to re-pay the amount of benefits received illegally. Re-payment can be made through automatic deductions from future benefits.

Persons coming forward during the amnesty period will not be prosecuted, according to Donna O'Grady, Crawford County DSS Volunteer Services Supervisor, and David Sabin, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, who have set up the program.

The amnesty program, possibly the first of its kind in Michigan, will be monitored by the state Inspector's office.

"This is the brain-child of our Crawford County DSS and Donna O'Grady," said Sabin. "I don't know of any others like it in the state. It might very well turn out to be a pilot program."

O'Grady said she came up with the amnesty idea after DSS County Director Robert Porter assigned her to the task of developing a program to reduce client reporting errors.

Sabin said welfare fraud usually involves recipients "fudging" on the amount of income they report. They under-report wages or they don't report some income at all.

In past years, the local DSS office had to rely on friends and neighbors reporting possible fraud cases. Now the main source for catching welfare fraud is the "Wage Match" computer system in Lansing.

"There's no question we will catch them. It's just a matter of time now," said Sabin.

The amnesty program is also open for employers and landlords who have assisted welfare clients in receiving illegal benefits.

"Anyone who helps conceal assets or information can be prosecuted," said Sabin. "And we probably will prosecute them harder. You can almost understand the reason why people on welfare try to get a little extra, but it's hard to understand the people not on welfare helping someone cheat the system."

Welfare fraud of more than $500 is a felony with a maximum of a 15-year jail penalty. People convicted of welfare fraud may also lose their welfare benefits.

The amnesty program will be a one-time offer open to all except persons already being prosecuted. Persons with questions should ask their DSS case worker or call the Crawford County DSS office, 348-7691.

Child Watch Program Started For Grayling

Grayling law enforcement and school officials have formed Child Watch, a program to increase the safety of area children. Police Chief Peter W. Stephan and Grayling Elementary School Principal Melvin Nunn are looking for volunteers to help in the program.

"The Child Watch Program needs observers within neighborhoods and commercial areas to report potential problems to the Police Department," said Police Chief Stephan. The program has the support of the Grayling Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization and the corporate sponsorship of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company (MichCon).

Each volunteers is required to attend a 90minute training session, under the direction of Grayling Patrolman Dennis Long. An active supporter of Child Watch Programs throughout its service areas, MichCon is providing the resource materials to implement the training program and to help volunteers report suspicious behavior to the police department. Providing youth support is Ronald Bancroft, a senior at Grayling High School and member of the Boy Scouts

"We would like everyone on a block to be a Child Watch volunteer," said Principal Nunn. "There are no limitations on a volunteer's time. No matter what time of day or night, anyone can help in providing a safe and secure neighborhood for our young-

Anyone interested in becoming a Child Watch volunteer should contact the Grayling Police Department at 348-4621.

Archery Legend Fred Bear Dies

By Dick Lattimer

Fred Bear, considered by many to be the father of modern bowhunting, died in Gainesville, Florida, on April 27 of natural causes following a long illness. Mr. Bear suffered from both emphysema and congestive heart failure.

The founder of Bear Archery, Fred Bear, 86, worked in his office practically everyday until the end of his life. He continued to travel the country promoting the sport of bowhunting that he loved so well. His most recent appearances had been at The SHOT Show and Safari Club International meetings in Las Vegas this past January.

Born in a snowstorm in Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, on March 5, 1902, Mr. Bear moved to Detroit in the early 1920's where he found work as a pattern-maker for the Packard Motor Car Company. In 1927 he saw an Alaskan adventure film made by Arthur Young and soon afterward had the occasion to meet Mr. Young. The two became friends and shot together at the Detroit Archery Club. Young helped Fred Bear in his early attempts at making equipment and Fred soon went into business with a friend and founded Bear Archery Company in 1933.

His worldwide bowhunting adventures carried him across North America, to Africa, India, and South America. In the early days he carried his own cameras and notebooks to record his adventures and the outdoors he loved so very much. In later years professional movie and television crews accompanied him. He was a frequent star of The American Outdoors television program, as well as such programs as The Tonight Show, The Mike Douglas Show, To Tell The Truth and many others. More than two dozen films recount his worldwide bowhunting trips.

Mr. Bear is survived by his widow, Henrietta, daughter Julia Kroll, both of Gainesville, and foster son Col. Michael Steger of Lompoc, California. There are seven grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Memorial services, following cremation, were held in Gainesville on May 2 at Holt Trinity Episcopal Church. The family requests that memorial donations be made to either the Department of Cardiology, University of Florida College of Medicine, Box J277, Gainesville, FL 32610; or, to The Nature Conservancy, 1800 North 10th Street, Arlington, Virginia 22209 in Mr. Bear's

A memorial service will be held for Fred Bear, on Wednesday, May 11, at 11:00 at the St. Francis Episcopal Church in Grayling.

AMAC Suit Dismissed From Circuit Court

A lawsuit to stop out-of-state military use of donated Camp Grayling land has been dismissed from 46th Circuit Court in Crawford County.

Judge Alton Davis ruled the Circuit Court is not the appropriate court to hear the case. "If (the) Plaintiff has a justiciable claim, it must be litigated in the Court of Claims," Davis said in a decision issued Monday, May 2. The state had offered four reasons why the AuSable Manistee Action Council, the group which filed the suit against the state Dept. of Military Affairs, should not be allowed to continue with the lawsuit.

Judge Davis' ruling only addressed the issue that the Circuit Court lacks jurisdiction to try the case. The judge's opinion said the Court of Claims has exclusive jurisdiction in claims against the state concern-

The lawsuit contends the state broke restrictions placed on donated Rasmus Hanson property. When the approximately 14,000 acres were donated in 1913, the restrictions specified the land could be used by the Michigan militia. AMAC sought to restrict out-of-state troops from training on the land.

Dan Alstott, executive director of AMAC, said on Tuesday morning that the group intends to continue their efforts with this case. After talking with their attorneys, the group said they definitely will appeal the decision.

Terry Norton, assistant Attorney General who represented the state, said the state was pleased the court agreed with their argument and allowed the motion to dismiss the case.

Battering: One of Society's Least-Publicized Crimes

Battering is a crime, one that Dan Rather has been quoted as saying is "one of society's dirty little secrets." To expel the myths regarding Domestic Violence, River House Shelter and Domestic Violence Services would like you to know:

1.) Battering is common —

· about half the couples in this country have experienced violence in an intimate relationship.

· Battering is the single major cause of injury to women, exceeding rapes, muggings, and even auto accidents (William French Smith, U.S. Attorney General, 1983).

 Battering crosses all educational, economic, religious, and social groups.

2.) Battering is serious -· More than one million abused women seek medical help for injuries caused by battering each year.

• Twenty-three percent of police officers killed in the line of duty were attempting to halt family fights.

• Thirty-three percent of female homicide

Shelter services are rooted in the belief that women and their children are entitled to a safe environment, free from violence. Shelters serve as a safe place, removed from the cycle of battering. It would be difficult to make up a story as wild as the one recently released about a space display to celebrate the centennial of the Eiffel Tower in France.

In 1989 the Eiffel Tower will be 100 years old and the Eiffel Tower Management Company wants to launch an orbiting string of luminous balloons that will appear as large as the full moon.

The light ring will be made up of an inflatable ring about 15 miles in circumference dotted with 100 reflective balloons. The balloons, each with a diameter of almost 20 feet, would reflect sunlight in much the same way as the moon. (See illustration

Plans call for the uninflated light ring to be stuffed into a container and launched into space. The container will explode, inflating the ring. The light ring would be expected to last about three years before it would selfdestruct. The cost of the light ring, including the launch expenses, is estimated at $40 million.

The centennial project has already angered many astronomers. They feel the object could damage highly sensitive detecting instruments and hinder space observations.

"There are a couple of aspects that are troubling about the project," says David L. Crawford, an astronomer at Kitt Peak National Observatory in Tucson, Arizona. "It is bright, and chances are it will wipe out the detectors. And basically, it's advertising. The next thing we'll see is the Mc-Donald's arches, and that's the wrong kind of thing to put in the sky."

This information came from the News

Service of the National Geographic Society in a press release dated April 20, 1988. I called their Washington D.C. office to see if this was an April Fool's joke that had just arrived a little late at the Avalanche. A News Service staff worker told me the centennial story was bizarre but true. I would have to label it more than just bizarre. Advertising in the night sky - one more intrusion into our lives. Have people gazed at the night sky for centuries to look for advertising?

"Oh look, there's the Milky Way!" exclaims little Jimmy.

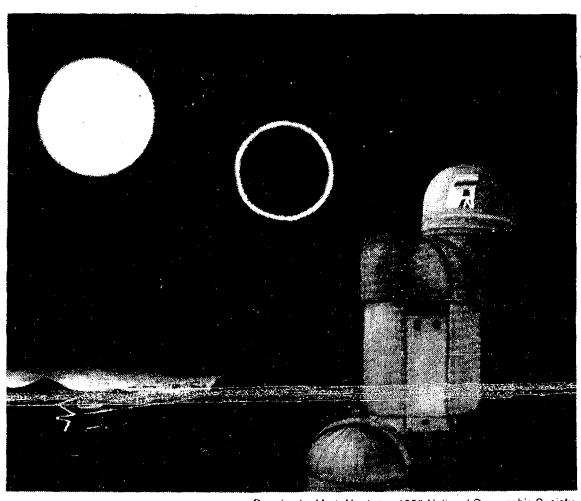

"Sorry Jimmy, that's just a new advertisement for a Snickers candy bar," his mother tells him.

"The Milky Way used to be something you could find in the night sky before the advertising industry took over the heavens," she says to a disappointed Jimmy. "It's too bad you don't remember how the sky looked before. It was pretty — sort of like the way the northern Michigan scenery looked before billboards came along."

Equally disgusting as the thought of advertising in the night sky is the cost of this proposed gimmick. What sort of people would try to raise $40 million for a frivolous project like this when there are so many good causes in our troubled worlds just crying for funds?

Forty million dollars wasted because a tourist attraction is 100 years old?

I think the air-headed people behind this idea should just fill the empty spaces in their heads with helium and launch them-

Time To Start Asking Centel for Improvements?

Dear Jon:

I read with interest your column of April 27, 1988, concerning the lack of PASS on the local cable system. As another die-hard Tiger fan I would also like to be able to watch additional Tiger games and as your basic couch potatoe I would also like to see additional entertainment channels added.

points from your article that I would like to expand on. First, in information supplied to Broadcasting Magazine (the trade journal of Broadcasters) Centel advises that the Grayling system has a channel capacity of 22 channels of which 14 are being used at this time. This means that there should be no problem in finding a spot

There are a couple of for PASS with 8 open chan-

The second point of interest is that before Centel bought the system from Grayling Cable Services, there was plans of adding 4 additional channels in the summer of 1985, these being Nashville Network, MTV, CNN, and The Weather Channel. We now have NashWNEM to get.

This may be the time for the citizens of Grayling to start asking CENTEL when they're going to start improving our system. Check

GHS Coach Teaches More Than Just Physical Skills

(The following letter was written to Bernadine Dosch, President of the Crawford AuSable School Board).

Dear President Dosch,

All too often we, the consumer of public educational services, remain silent when we ought to commend. It is, however, as much an obligation of simple citizenship to give accolades when they are earned as it is a right to protest when things are

High school wrestling is an interesting competitive sport. I am particularly impressed with success of Grayling's team. Therefore, I sought to find reasons for their superior performance. I am convinced their success springs not so much from any superiority of raw athletic talent as it does, in fact, from the basic character of the Grayling athlete.

Your coach, Don Ferguson, is an outstanding teacher for he knows how to touch the lives of young people in a very positive way. It is obvious to even a novice observer such as myself that he is part of each wrestler on his team and each one is part of him. He feels what they feel both physically and psychologically. During a match he is very intense. He twists and turns on his chair; he shouts encouragement but is never fault finding.

It is an emotionally uplifting experience for an old man to watch a master at work and to talk with many young men on the Grayling team. They are magnificent in every way. The auspicious influence of the coach is evi-

Please accept my good wishes and thanks to you, to the board of education, the administration, and to all personnel of the Grayling School District. You are making life so meaningful to young people and so enjoyable for me.

Speaking of Speakes.....

by Richard Milliman

LARRY SPEAKES, the former presidential spokesman in the Reagan White House, kicked up quite a storm recently with his book on his White House years.

Mr. Speakes, a former small town newspaper editor from the South, not only admitted making up quotes for President Reagan, and dishing them out to the press without the President's knowledge or approval, but actually seemed to be bragging about it.

"I did it as an act of loyalty to the President," Mr. Speakes recalls now.

The most significant instance under discussion arose after a Geneva conference between Mr. Reagan and Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

After the session, so the story goes, Mr. Reagan really didn't have anything to say, so Mr. Speakes made up a lofty sounding quote and told the press that Mr. Reagan had said it.

He also dished out another supposed quote from the President, which actually had been uttered by Secretary of State George Shultz.

The specific citation represents a proverbial tempest in a proverbial teapot. The quote which Mr. Speakes originated and put in Mr. Reagan's mouth was innocent enough, and didn't stir up any international repercussions.

BUT WHAT HAS the usual political observers aghast is the fact that Mr. Speakes would tell the assembled press that Mr. Reagan said something when he really didn't. The focal point is on honesty and integrity of the White House itself.

As to a made up quote, by itself, the reaction of this former Press Secretary and political speech writer is: "So What?"

Made up quotes in politics and government? It happens all the time. What do you suppose speech writers do, anyway, but put words in the mouth of the speech maker.

There are a couple of significant differences here, however.

Usually, The Boss — whether it's the President, the governor, a congressman, a mayor, or anyone who employs a spokesperson or a speech writer — sees and approves the quote before it's issued in his or her name.

And second, the significance of the event in the Speakes controversy is of importance. Certainly the press and the public should be able to rely on a White House version of the President's comments and thoughts on something as important as a meeting with Mr. Gorbachev.

But in the day to day running of a government, words of an officeholder get issued all the time in his/her name, sometimes with prior knowledge and approval, and sometimes without.

The governor's office, for example, receives hundreds of letters a day, and issues hundreds more a day. I doubt very much if Gov. Blanchard reads each one, and it's a certainty that he does not write every one upon which his signature appears.

Mr. Speakes error was compounded by an arrogance in bragging about putting words in Mr. Reagan's mouth. The best staff person, in most cases, is the anonymous one.

AS FOR MR. SPEAKES, he now says that he does not really know whether the error was in making up the quotes, or in telling about

"It's hard for me to decide what I'm being criticized for," Mr. Speakes said.

If that is true, then it's no wonder that Mr.

Reagan had more than a few problems with the media during Mr. Speakes' tenure as presidential spokesperson. Such an attitude indicates a lack of sensitivity that is difficult to fathom.

And that's probably the real reason why the brokerage firm which was paying Mr. Speakes $250,000 or so a year in salary decided to dump him.

GETTING USED TO BIFOCALS QUESTION: A lot of my friends are wearing bifocals and like the idea of having one pair of glasses instead of the two. Are bifocals difficult to get used it? ANSWER: If you can move your eyes, you won't have any problem getting used to bifocals. The eyeglasses have to be properly fitted so they are centered in front of your eyes. The rest is up to you. It may take a few days to get used to them, but the convenience is worth it. Your eyes will move up to use the vision correction in the upper part of the lens. You look down when you're reading to make use of the lower part of the lens. Bifocals are convenient to use because you don't have to change glasses for different kinds of viewing.

Frederic Baptist Church Hosts Evangelist Jim Cook

The First Baptist Church of Frederic will feature Evangelist Jim Cook in six days of special services beginning Sunday, May 8-13.

The meetings are scheduled for 9:45 and 11:00 Sunday morning as well as 6:00 on Sunday evening. The weeknight services will be Monday through Friday at 7:00 p.m. Rev. Jim Cook was a pastor before he entered evangelistic work. With this background, he understands the needs of people in local churches and seeks to meet those needs in his meetings. Raised in a family on

Detroit's east side, Cook was familiar with violence and gang warfare during his early years. As a result, many of his early friends went on to serve prison terms or face violent death. In an effort to escape that environment, Cook joined the Marine Corps. It was shortly after his honorable discharge that he accepted Christ as his Saviour.

Following Bible School training, Cook pastored two thriving churches in California before entering evangelistic service.

In addition to Cook's preaching, special music will be a part of each of the services. A nursery with qualified workers is furnished for each service. Transportation may be arranged by calling 348-8126.

More Events Added To Diamond Jubilee Plans

Planning for the Diamond Jubilee celebration for Camp Grayling has been refined to add many more events to the summer long affair.

The first Grayling events will occur on Memorial Day, May 30 when a large contingent of the Michigan National Guard will participate at the cemetery ceremonies sponsored by the local American Legion Post. Plans call for the Grayling High School band and the Michigan State National Guard band to play at the cemetery. A helicopter flyover will also take place there.

A parade will then form to march to the Crawford County Historical Museum at the Railroad Depot. Plans for the parade include having the military participants in various uniforms from the revolutionary period to the present time.

During the day there will be an Arts and Crafts Show, Wildlife Art Show, Hartwick Pines Sawmill Days, Pony Pull, Quilt Show, Marathon Runs, Antique Auto and Tractor Show and an Air National Guard flyover at the start of the parade.

Winding up the week of events Sunday will be an inter-denominational Sunrise Worship Service on the banks of the AuSable River. Also featured will be a children's Fishing Contest at 2 p.m.

The Diamond Jubilee at Camp Grayling beginning July 31 through August 5 will host Freedom Academy, held each year for young people who have an interest in a military career. On August 1 a Military Symposium will feature many speakers.

During the month of August, National Guard personnel and equipment will be oh hand at the various local county fairs.

Concluding the Diamond Jubilee events for the summer will be a repeat performance of the Artillery through the Ages demonstration that was so well received last

During the summer, the Michigan National Guard will also be working on various local civic improvement projects including the installation of devices throughout the county at bodies of water so that fire tanker trucks can fill up more rapidly and with less environmental damage.

We have been doing poems in our room. We've been writing them. And if it's easy we can read them. We've been reading poems in our reading book.

We get to help people in our room. We help them clean their desks. Sometimes we help them with their arithmetic book. Sometimes we are invited to other classrooms for special things. Dictated by Erika Hallin and Brooke Ginther, Miss Loft's first grade.

We are studying about dinosaurs. And we are studying in our books about all kinds of stuff. We have been making dinosaurs. We put them on our table and on Mrs. Nunn's table because she is showing us dinosaurs and telling us the names. We do play with them. We put them on the walls and she made fake trees and lakes. The dinosaurs lived by volcanoes and ate flowers and meat. Dictated by Devon Brush, Mrs. Nunn's Blue Kindergarten.

On May 20 we are going to have a Science Fair in our classroom. We each have a project that we are going to bring in and set it up on our desks. If Miss Johnson's students have a project they can bring it into our class-

We are hatching chicks in our room. We started yesterday. We got them from Mrs. Langseth and Mrs. Hubbard. We have fifteen eggs in the incubator. They are going to hatch about May 11. We have certain rules to take care of the eggs. Each day a row gets to take care of the eggs. We have to make sure the temperature is right. The temperature has to be between 96 and 98 degrees Fahrenheit. Every week the women are going to come in and we are going to have projects about the eggs. I like math and reading, I like a lot of stuff. Right now we went past 131's. We go into double digits in math. Sometimes we do into the 100's. In Reading right now we are in Sun and Shadows. It's a reading book. We are going to do a test today. I think it's going to be for level 5 in Reading. Dictated by Lena DeHart, Mrs. Yost's first grade.

Vikings Drop Wild Game to Rogers

A wild second game of a doubleheader Saturday will add to an already good Grayling-Rogers City baseball rivalry.

A two-out two-run home run gave Rogers City a come-from-behind win in the bottom of the 12th inning. But the action up to the 12th inning was just as good.

The Vikings took an early lead of 3-2 and increased it to 8-2 in the 5th inning. Rogers City came back with 3 runs in the 5th to tighten it to 8-5. Grayling added a run in the 6th inning and then took a 9-5 lead into the bottom of the 7th inning — the last regulation inning in league play.

Rogers exploded with two doubles and two home runs to tie the game 9-9 and the fun was just starting.

In the 10th inning, Grayling scored in the top of the inning. Rogers came back to tie in the bottom of the inning. In the 11th, Skeeter Apps hit a home run to give Grayling an 11-10 lead. In the bottom of the inning, a Rogers City home run that Grayling players said bounced over the fence tied the game again.

In the 12th Grayling scored two runs to go ahead 13-11. Rogers City hit a home run in the bottom of the inning and pulled to within 13-12 with two outs. Then the home run ended a wild game. Grayling dropped the opening game 6-2 The game was close until Rogers scored 5 runs in the fifth.

Against Gaylord last Tuesday the Vikings won 7-2 and 4-3. In the opener, Flaskie Robins hit two home runs and John Kinnee and Mike McNamara each hit one. Palmer only gave up three hits for the win.

In the second game, Chris Skidmore only gave up 3 runs and Kinnee led the hitting with two singles.

Against West Branch last Thursday, Grayling lost 8-3 in the opener and was trailing 5-3 in the second game when it was called because of darkness. Jason Teddy had 3 hits in the 2nd game, McNamara had 2, and Palmer hit a home run. In the 1st game, Palmer and Kinnee had 2 hits each. Grayling is at home against Onaway Thursday, May 5, and travels to Charlevoix May 10.

Bits of Talk_

By Sandy McAnallen

This week I learned of a lot of great grandparents here in Grayling. Stewart and Joan Rose of Grayling became great grandparents for the first time last week when their grandson and granddaughter-in-law, Mike and Stephanie Rose had their first baby. The baby girl, Cortina, will soon have a cousin too. Dave, another of Stewart and Joan's 13 grandchildren is due to help his wife have a baby in the near future. Danny and Helen Rose, Joan and Stewart's son and daughterin-law, drove up from Flint (where Cortina lives) for a visit with the new great grandparents and to tell all about the new arrival.

Greg and Patricia Hardy are the new proud parents of a beautiful baby girl, weighting in at ten pounds and eleven ounces. Kristy Lee was born at dinner time at Mercy Hospital, here in Grayling on April 20, 1988. Her grandperents are Kurt and Linda Marshall of Grayling and Christine and Jim Myers of Smiths Creek. This lucky little girl also has great granparents right here in Grayling, Clare and Maxine Abeel and also Dow Vanessa Ann Vogel was born April 14, 1988, and is the new addsition to the Vogel family here in Grayling. Mom and Dad are Dave and Heidi Vogel and Vanessa even has a big sister, Andrea Marie. Heidi's mom, Joyce Lindberg, has come from Clearwater, Florida to help for three weeks. Grandpa Alf Svensen of Norway will be coming May 6, 7 and 8 to meet Vanessa. Grandma and Grandpa Art and Doris Vogel came back from their vacation in St. Cloud Florida a couple of days early in honor of Vanessa's arrival. Middle School News

On Wednesday, March 9th, Mrs. Denman came into our 2nd hour advanced studies class. She showed us a movie called The Wind. It was about air pollution. It showed Isle Royal which, after being studied, was found to be more polluted than Lake Superior. In the movie they also showed a fish swiming in the water. They broke open bird eggs which they knew were deformed. Inside the eggs the deformed birds had tumors, and organs on the outside of their bodies. The movie was very interesting and really got you thinking about pollution. Mrs. Denman also answered most of the questions we asked. She told us what she did and how she was involved in stopping pollution. Mrs. Denman was very informative and it was nice to have her come to our room. By Nicole Sloan, Advanced Studies Class.

In advanced studies we have been learning about the ozone, and the environment. We have learned most of the goods, bads, and do's and don't about the ozone. On March 9th, Mrs. Denman came in and showed us a movie about the dangerous chemicals companies are putting in our air and water.

The movie also showed some effects the chemicals could have on the water animals and the other animals that feed on them. The movie showed that some harmful effects could be dangerous tumors, birth defects, and other problems with the animals born and unborn bodies. Many of our water birds won't ever hatch because of all the chemicals in our world. My question is, we have the world in our hands, why are we hurting it? In the end are we just going to get hurt? Tuition Guarantee Win Favorable IRS Ruling

By Warren M. Hoyt Michigan Press Association

Following a favorable Internal Revenue Service ruling, Governor James J. Blanchard said the college tuition guarantee program, the Michigan Education Trust, will go forward immediately and probably enroll participants by late-spring. The IRS ruled that while there are tax consequences to some aspects of the program, there are none on the purchasers. Implementation of the 1986 act was being held up pending the ruling.

Richard Cole, president of the Michigan Education Trust and Blanchard's special advisor on the future of higher education, said although he has not seen the actual ruling, he has the sense it will make the state program most costly.

He said the ruling will have some implications on the tax status of the trust itself and the trust, as a corporate body, may be subject to taxation.

Cole said the ruling will have an effect on the investment strategy as taxable investments would yield higher returns but be subject to federal taxation while non-taxable investments, not subject to federal taxation. would yield a lower rate.

The tax consequences will of investments the fund makes, he noted. Cole said this could make the program most costly to parents.

Cole said the year-long IRS process was not unusual in that it "addressed a very comprehensive question to a very complex issue." He said the ruling could have very serious tax/ revenue consequences to the federal government. He said he was not happy with everything in the ruling, but it would allow the MET program to go forward. "It (the ruling) reflects the current tax laws and we will live with that," he said.

The trust fund president noted a market study conducted by Michigan State University indicated a great demand to participate in the tuition guarantee program.

He added a New Jersey investment marketing organization selling on the theory of protecting the future college tuitions of children has been very successful in Michigan due to the awareness of citizens of the MET program. "This is a good reason to believe the program will be well received,"

he said. Depending upon the initial demand, Mr. Cole said that the state will probably have to limit participation. He said there would have to be some measuring of age of student, cost of projected tuition and determine future participation. He suggested the program would be opened on "some variation of first-come, first-served." He said he anticipated everybody who signs a contract and makes the proper financial arrangements within the first week or so to be accepted. "At that point, we may pause to determine how the next round will go," he said.

STATE BOARD SPONSORING HAZARDOUS WASTE DISPOSAL WORKSHOPS

The State Board of Education is sponsoring a series of workshops to teach

Michigan school districts how to dispose of hazardous waste material in accordance with state law.

The regional workshops, which will be held from late-March through early May at eight different locations around the state, will assist school personnel in developing a waste management plan to handle small quantities properly.

Interim State Superintendent of Public Instruction Gary Hawks said the Department of Natural Resources plans to begin monitoring local school districts to determine if waste is managed and disposed according to state regulations.

"Each school district has a legal responsibility to dispose of hazardous waste material in a manner that will protect the environment and human health," Hawks said.

Fred Bear, 1902 - 1988: Grayling Knew Him Well

Bear talks with hunters at Bear Paw Landing in Canada in 1974.

Bear, Russ Wright, of Grayling, and two other companions on the Valiant Maid in Alaska.

Fred Bear "The Man in the Borsalino Hat"

"Fred Bear is a soft-spoken, whang-leather outdoorsman who knows most birds and wild flowers by name and always wears a sprig of fresh-picked greenery in the band of his soft felt Borsalino hat. With his jug-handle ears, bulging jawbones and shambling, but sure-footed walk, he much resembles his namesake. Because he is a thirty-third degree master of woodcraft, the moment he gets into the woods to hunt he begins to think like his quarry." So wrote Life Magazine's Don Moser of Fred Bear following a hunting trip together in 1963 in British Columbia.

A professional Alaskan hunting guide and outfitter who has literally seen thousands of hunters in action once remarked, "Fred Bear is the finest natural hunter I've ever known."

Astronaut Joe Engle, fresh from his command of our second U.S. Space Shuttle mission, said on the occasion of his surprise visit to Fred's 80th birthday party, "There's a large percentage of the guys in the Astronaut Office that flat idolize Fred Bear. We idolize Fred because he represents just about everything that can be represented as a hunter, as a conservationist, an outdoorsman, but mostly as a human being . . . Fred represents everything there is American." Engle had hunted with Fred in 1972 in Alaska.

And, John Mitchell, who had first met Fred while researching a critique on hunting entitled "Bitter Harvest" for Audubon Magazine, wrote "In a figurative manner of speaking, I suspect I had come to Grayling looking to bury Caesar, not to praise him . . . I was loaded for Bear, all right — and totally disarmed by him. It was not so much what he said, but how he said it: openly, undefensively, sometimes humorously (and then, at his own expense), often with perception and sensitivity; and always, it seemed to me, with such a large measure of humility for a man so lightly hitched to the practical business necessities of self-promotion . . . I was disarmed, outflanked, and won over . . . "

Someone once said that when Fred Bear first started bowhunting in 1929 you could fit all of the bowhunters in Michigan into the same Model T. And it is largely through his promotional efforts that the number of bowhunters in America today now stands at close to two million. Others have described him as a mid-20th century Henry Ford, a man he greatly admired during his early days in Detroit, for his ability at almost single-handedly building an entire industry. And one source has stated that the Bear Archery Film Library is the single largest collection of outdoor films ever produced on one subject. Perhaps the incisive John Mitchell summed it up best when he wrote of Fred that he was . . . "the Papa Bear of the great outdoors, the archer emeritus, the patron saint of bowhunting in America, the elder statesman of the field sports."

All of these accolades are heady stuff indeed for a farm boy of modest means from the Mennonite country of Pennsylvania. Born March 5, 1902 in Waynesboro during the worst snowstorm of the winter, Fred very easily could have followed the footsteps of his father, Harry Bear, and stayed forever in the comfortable confines of the Cumberland Valley. That he did not made all the difference and is due in large part to the influence of his Uncle Charley Bear, who lived and worked in New York City, stimulated no doubt by an inventive family tradition exemplified by his mother's uncle, Daniel Drawbaugh, who was considered by many to have been the original inventor of the telephone. Alexander Graham Bell won a lengthy Supreme Court battle with Drawbaugh over the matter by just one vote.

Following a childhood highlighted with hunting and trapping near his home, and with Uncle Charley's help, Fred journeyed at age 21 to Detroit, Michigan where he found work as a patternmaker at Packard Motor Car Company. In 1925 he moved over to Chrysler and then later ran an advertising silk-screening plant for the automotive trade.

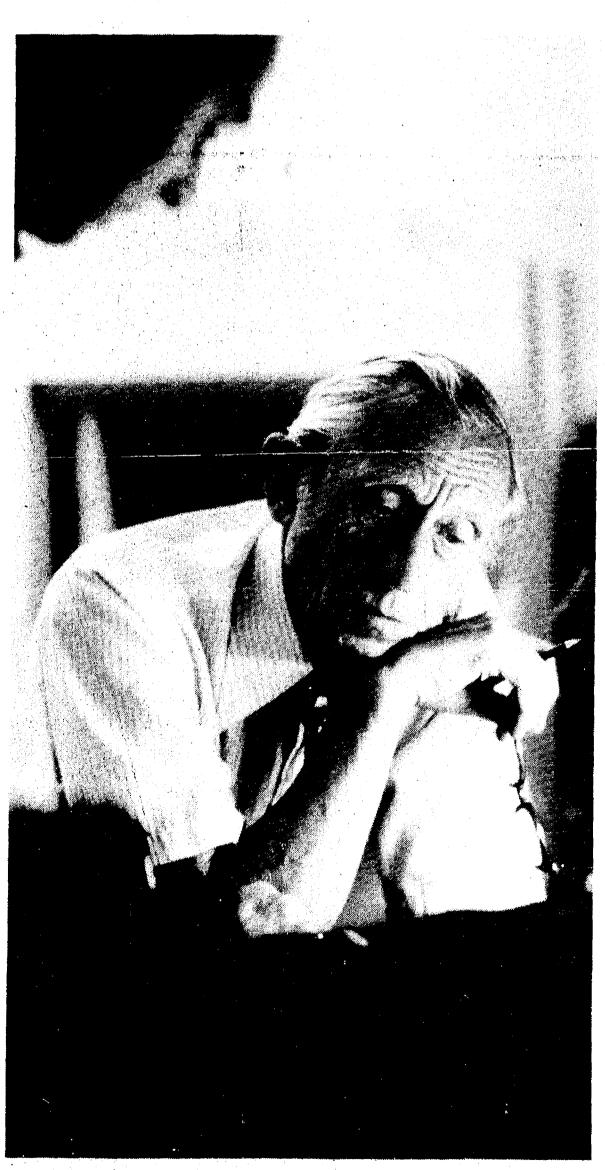

One day in 1927 a chance visit to the Adams Theatre in Detroit changed the course of Fred Bear's life and ultimately led to the creation of a new form of outdoor recreation for millions of people around the globe. Fred and a friend, Ray Stannard, saw a film titled "Alaskan Adventures" depicting the bowhunting exploits of a Californian by the name of Arthur Young. Young and his friends, Saxton Pope and Will "Chief" Compton had learned many of their bowhunting skills from Ishi, the last primitive Indian in America who was discovered in 1911. Before Ishi's premature death of tuberculosis in 1916 the group often hunted together, thus passing along Ishi's ancient archery skills to the new Americans. The film captivated Fred's interest and in 1927, when he finally met Art Young on a visit the famous bowhunter made to Detroit, Fred's lifelong bowhunting quest began in earnest. Young and he huddled together in Fred's basement workshop where the experienced archer taught the newcomer how to make bows, arrows and handmade Irish linen bowstrings. They roved the fields near Detroit while the older man helped Fred hone his archery skills. And many years after Young's death in 1935 Fred would recall with fond memories the hours the two spent together stump and field shooting.

In 1933, during the height of the Great Depression, Fred and a friend, Charles Piper, pooled their resources of $600 and started the Bear Products Company in a small rented garage on Tireman Avenue in Detroit. Their primary products were silkscreen advertising banners and flyers for Chryster automobile dealers across the country. But, off in one corner Fred handcrafted archery equipment for his growing circle of friends who appreciated the fine craftsmanship that his patternmaker's training brought to the ancient art of the archery bowyer. By 1939 they had expanded to the point that a third move to larger quarters was necessary and since his small archery business could now support him, the two dissolved their partnership with Piper staying with the silkscreen business and Fred launching out on his own as the Bear Archery Company.

Fred began bowhunting in 1929 and his first real hunting bow was turned out of an $8 Osage Orange stave purchased from Fred Kibbe in Coldwater, Michigan. He finally connected on a whitetail deer in 1935 beginning a long string of big game animals downed with bow and arrow. Although he had been a rifle hunter all his life, the new challenge of getting close to the animal with the shorter range bow appealed to this raw-boned woodsman and he was hooked on it for life. But, in order to be able to make a living at doing what he liked best, he first had to build a market for his products. And so he first tackled target archery, winning three Michigan State Championships in the process in 1934, 1937 and 1939, thereby widening his archery reputation. He also began barnstorming on the sports show circuit so popular in those days putting on archery exhibitions each year in places like Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, and St. Louis. He was also instrumental in helping promote the first bowhunting season in Michigan in 1936, seeing it as a splendid opportunity as both a hunter and as a businessman to help build the young sport of bowhunting.

In 1942 Fred and Detroit Free Press Editor Jack Van Coevering journeyed to the Blaney area of Michigan's Upper Penninsula to make the first Bear Archery hunting film. Friday the 13th proved to be lucky for the two as on that day they were able to down a nice buck and record the adventure on film. This gave Fred something he could show to gun clubs and sportsman's groups to help promote bowhunting. In a sense, it was a direct take-off on the first bowhunting film he had ever seen, Art Young's "Alaskan Adventures". And it was a formula that he would follow down the years to build his company and sport, filming a hunt and then using film and story to promote sales and seasons. His easily recognizable trademark soon became his Borsalino hat and he would always wear it over the years to set him apart on both films and still photography. Trips to Canada soon followed where in 1945 he downed a moose with his bow and in 1946 his first bear. He turned all into stories for the archery enthusiast's magazines and area newspapers.

Desirous of being closer to his favorite bowhunting and flyfishing territory in northern lower Michigan, Fred moved his archery plant there in 1947. The small town of Grayling was idealy suited for a hunting-oriented company being situated there as it was between the Continued on Page 2

AuSable State Forest and the Huron National Forest. It was a gentle community setting that matched Fred's personality and that of most archers and bowhunters. And from there Fred journeyed throughout the world, always returning to the simplicity of the life he built for himself and his employees in the Grayling area. Life during the 1950's and '60's for both Fred Bear and his company seemed to match the often dramatic cyclical flow of the earth itself, being one moment on the open meadow of a mountainside and the next at the roughest part of a valley floor. In 1952 a sudden fire destroyed most of Bear Archery and all of Fred's trophies collected to that point. This came on the heels of the very successful introduction of the Grizzly bow, the first truly mass-produced bow in archery history. Well accepted by the hunting public Bear Archery products now had a national reputation and in the 1950's Fred expanded his hunting horizons to Wyoming. He first hunted in the Lander area at a time when the Wyoming Fish & Game Department counted just four bowhunters in the entire state. He took his first antelope in 1952.

In 1955 he boldly flew to Africa following in the footsteps of Art Young and Dr. Saxton Pope who had hunted there in the early part of the century. This gained him worldwide attention and hunts soon followed in the Yukon Territory, British Columbia, Alaska, India, Brazil and back to Africa several more times. On one of these African trips his party included famous radio and television personality Arthur Godfrey who Fred had taught to bowhunt at Grousehaven, his favorite bowhunting area in Michigan. Fred downed an elephant and told of it on Godfrey's radio program broadcast via tapes from Africa. This, coupled with Moser's article in Life Magazine about the same time, and a spate of Fred Bear stories in the outdoor publications helped Bear Archery gain a momentum that took it from a small northern Michigan company to one with worldwide sales and reputation.

In 1966 Fred's inventive genius and promotional tenacity was suitably recognized by his induction into the Sporting Goods Industry Hall of Fame. He was also among the first handful of people inducted into the new Archery Hall of Fame when it was founded in 1972 and later into the prestigious Hunting Hall of Fame. He had earlier been voted membership in the exclusive Explorer's Club and would also be invited to become a member of the Boone & Crockett Club founded by President Theodore Roosevelt. He is also a member of the Adventurer's Club, Polar Equator Club, Safari Club International, Pope & Young Club and the Outdoor Writer's Association of America. He was awarded the W.H. Compton Medal of Honor Award in Archery and was voted Winchester's Outdoorsman of the Year, and holds their Lifetime Career Award.

In the mid 1960's an organization to be known as The Fred Bear Sports Club was suggested. In addition to providing a home for the nation's bowhunters at that time with suitable award patches and recognition, the Fred Bear Sports Club also provided the sport with its first national demographic base. In 1970 the Club was officially kicked off with membership being limited to a handful of professional archers and Astronauts Walt Cunningham (Apollo 7) and Joe Engle (Space Shuttle) and the Astronaut's Trainer Joe D. Garino. Also members were television stars William Shatner (Star Trek) and James Drury (The Virginian). In 1972 the club was opened to the public and counts over 34,000 members since that time in all 50 states and 42 foreign countries. This captive group of bowhunters has provided most of the demographic information used in the promotion and defense of the sport since that time and has been the basis for many studies done by the FBSC for The American Archery Council in recent years. In referring to Fred and the FBSC, Merrill L. Petoskey, former wildlife chief in Michigan and now with the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C., said that Fred is a "practicing ecologist" and that the Fred Bear Sports Club is "a catalyst toward helping the American citizen better understand the outdoor life as we believe it should be understood - wonderful, awesome, sometimes cruel, but always dynamic and revealing of truth to those who do understand." Since its founding the FBSC has produced three Award winning hunting and fishing films. One of them, "The Good Earth" with Fred and Astronaut Jim Lovell, has been seen by 26,000,000 television viewers on 7,187 telecasts telling the outdoor recreation story. And in the past 8 years there have been over 10,000 showings across America of the Fred Bear bowhunting films to sportsmen's and youth groups. Two of the films have also been seen in over 80,000 showings to community and school groups. In addition, the FBSC has spearheaded the consistent televising of scores of segments on outdoor programs promoting bowhunting and professional fisheries and wildlife management to more than 70% of the U.S. television households in recent years. Most recently FBSC has joined with the prestigious Izaak Walton League of America on a joint Outdoor Ethics Project including a quarterly newsletter featuring Fred Bear and judging the annual broadcast and print communications efforts of the 50 state fish and game departments, and their counterparts in the Canadian provinces. In both Washington, D.C. and out in the grass roots level, the FBSC continues to support and promote the maximum recreational use of our available resources.

In 1966 Fred's collection of bowhunting artifacts, trophies and memorabilia had outgrown the small lobby area of this Grayling office. Most of it had been kept in storage out of public view and so to rectify that and to create new imputus to his lifelong promotion of archery and bowhunting, a spacious Fred Bear Museum was built in an area named Bear Mountain in his honor near the town of Grayling. Between 1966 and 1980 more than 100,000 people a year visited the Fred Bear Museum. Finally, following the move of Bear Archery to Gainesville, Florida, the Museum was closed and is currently in the planning stages for the Florida location. In the meantime, the artifacts and trophies are on display once more in the public tour area of the new plant.

In 1967 Fred and his partners at the time, K.K. Knickerbocker, Dick Mauch and Bob Munger sold Bear Archery to the Victor Comptometer Company of Chicago, Illinois. This enabled a sizable capital expansion of the company, its facilities and its promotional budgets. In 1977 Victor was acquired by Kidde, Inc. of Clifton, New Jersey and Bear Archery continues to this day as a member of the Kidde family of fine companies.

John Mitchell perhaps summed up Fred's journey in his article 'PAPA BEAR' for Field and Stream magazine in 1982 when he wrote: "What an incredible travelogue he had made of his life. And what an unperishable record. Almost always it was for the record, the cameras humming, the pencil by lantern-light skipping across the pages of his field notes (published by Doubleday in 1976), the films (more than twenty-five) and the books (three), the trophies and artifacts accumulating at last in the Fred Bear Museum. Always pushing himself, pushing his products, pushing his sport. "I don't know how I did it," he told me our last time together at Grousehaven. "There must have been something driving me to run like that — just running around the mountains. But gee! It was fun."

The Bible Speaks From Calvary Baptist Church -

RELIGIOUS HYPOCRISY TODAY Part 2

Probably never in history has more time and money been spent in public media revealing the details of sex sin than the repeated articles about fallen television evangelists. It is reported the Elmer Gantry movie is being remade, and Jimmy Swaggart is the role model the lead actor is now studying. The public ridicule of the religious right will be unending.

At least until this time, the scandal has been limited to the charismatic left wing of evangelicalism. These men have been among those who as part of the holiness movement, claim knowledge like tongues, visions, prophesying. They claim special healing miracles. Some hold our special promises of health, wealth, and spiritual blessing to their followers. Many of us who do not believe these claims are biblical for today, have attributed much of this religious phenomenon to a learned emotionalism. Our greatest concern for charismatic gifts are the deceptive nature of these gifts under antichrist to pull people away from love of the truth of Holy Scripture. (2 Thess 2:8-12). Religious experience will replace Bible truth.

To support the above point, Bakker, Gorman, and Swaggart were members of the Assemblies of God which is the strongest of most orthodox in the Bible believing group of the charismatics. The bulk of the neopentecostals are tar less grounded in the Bible and orthodox doctrine. Some are following a blind mysticism whose authority is personal experience. Bible truth is not even considered essential. The sex scandals of the conservation charismatics will not discredit or discourage the liberal charismatic movement which has already abondoned the Bible as authority. Much of the neo-pentecostal movement is now ripe for a New Age Movement take over, converting them into the mysticism of Eastern Hinduism. This is pure antichrist religiion mysticism.

The true Bible believing churches have been bypassed by those seeking the glamor of Hollywood, the success of big numbers, and big money, the excitement of a rock concert, or the playtime atmosphere of Disneyworld. Play religion may help you make social contacts, provide games for the kids, and enhance your reputation, but it won't forgive your sins, give you peace with God, or grant you assurance of eternal life. Only an infallible Bible can offer you this hope. We at Calvary Baptist Church offer the same Christ, the same faith, and the same Bible our ancestors offered 350 years ago this April when the first Baptist church was established on the east coast of these United State of America. If you really want to know the truth, join us for a verse by verse study of the 1611 King James Bible. (The Bible Speaks is heard

The Deacon's Speakin'

Deacon Bob Nolan

Scripture Reference: John 15: 9-17

This passage is not as rich in human words as Paul's hymn to love is his letter to the Corinthians, but the reading from John has more unforgettable thoughts. The passage from the Last Supper tells us our Lord's deepest thoughts. The theme is simple, as simple as the beating of a heart, a beating on which the whole body depends.

God is love. He loves us in Jesus Christ. People love God in Jesus Christ. People must love one another in Jesus Christ. This teahcing is given in smooth and affectionate repititions in a tone of confidence.

The Lord wants to give His joy to all His Disciples. What is this joy of Jesus? It is the joy of knowing that He is the Son, that of being able to announce to us the Good News of salvation, and that of revealing to us that God is a Father.

Our Lord is aware of the anguish that afflicted Him in His Passion, but He knew by His Passion that He would save us. He is thinking of His Resurrection and the mystery of the new life it introduces on earth. Jesus lives where perfect joy is at home. He entrusts Himself to the Father; in His Father He finds courage and consolation, and His heart gives thanksgiving and praise.

All this He desires to give to His disciples.

We experience joy when we possess a certain good. Such joy is perfect when we are certain of possessing it forever. this is the joy of Jesus. As Son of God, He possess the absolute good in its fullness and without any fear. This absolute good is the love of the Father. Jesus wants to open the hearts of His disciples to this love. In this way, He wants to put His own joy in us.

People are open to the joy of God from the moment that we come aware of being loved by God. To know one is loved, to be certain of it, and to say to yourself that one is loved by God the Father, this is the source of the greatest

That is why He introduces us to the intimacy of His own thoughts; He lets us know He learns from the Father. Later on, the Holy Spirit will accomplish in them a work of enthusiasm and perseverance. But, from the time of the Last Supper, we become sharers in and witnesses of the greatest Love; we become friends. it depends on us whether the Lord will call us His friends!

There are many good cake mixes on the market, but nothing beats the down-home goodness of a home-baked cake. This recipe is easy to make and is truly delicious.

Chocolate Buttermilk Cake

3/4 c. boiling water 3/4 c. unsweetened cocoa powder

1 c. buttermilk

21/2 c. unsifted all-purpose flour 1½ Tsp. baking soda

1/2 Tsp. baking powder 1/2 Tsp. salt

3/4 c. (11/2 sticks) butter, softened 2 c. sugar

4 eggs

1½ Tsp. vanilla

Pour boiling water over cocoa and stir to dissolve. Add buttermilk. Sift flour, soda, baking powder and salt onto wax paper. Beat butter and sugar in large bowl with electric mixer at medium speed until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with cocoa mixture. Pour into three greased and floured nine inch cake pans and bake at 350° for 25 minutes.

Frosting: Beat 8 ounces whipped cream cheese with electric mixer at low speed to soften. Beat in 1/2 cup sifted powered sugar until smooth. Beat in 2 tablespoons orangeflavored liqueur and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Beat in another 3/4 cup sifted powdered sugar. Add 11/2 cups heavy cream and beat at high speed until stiff.

If you buy buttermilk for this recipe and find that you have no use for the other three cups, try using buttermilk powder which can always be kept on hand. Substitute one cup of water for the buttermilk in the recipe and sift the appropriate amount of buttermilk powder with the flour.

Serve your guests a spicy beet pickle and let them think you slaved over a hot stove last summer.

Bring to a boil: 1/2 cup reserved liquid, 1/2 c. vinegar, 2 Tbsp. sugar, 2 whole cloves, 1/2 Tsp. salt, 3 peppercorns, 1/4 bay leaf or one small leaf.

Pour over beets and chill 12 hours.

Resource Review

Bruce Patrick Conservation Officer

The Michigan legislature recently passed a bill that will give state residents an opportunity to purchase a lifetime hunting/fishing license. The licenses will be sold between March 1, 1989 and February 28, 1990 at regular license agents and other outlets approved by the DNR. There may be window another availability at some point after that, but it is uncertain at this time. The lifetime licenses will be expensive and one will have to count on a long life to make them worthwhile. The costs are as follows: Lifetime Small Game License - $200.; Lifetime Firearm License - $285.; Lifetime Fishing license - $220.; Trout/Salmon Lifetime Stamp - $220.; Lifetime Sportspersons License $1,000.

Simple arithmetic indicates a person would have to hunt and fish for 22 years to make the purchase of a Lifetime Sportsman's License worthwhile, considering the $45.00/year cost for that license at present. Of course, purchase of a lifetime license protects the buyer from future license fee increases.

Revenue from lifetime license sales will be deposited in the Lifetime License Trust Fund. That fund will reimburse the Game and Fish Protection fund for any loss of money caused by the lifetime licen-

This is a program initiated by interests outside of the DNR and we do not know what the public's response will be. When other states initiated the lifetime licenses, first year sales ranged from a few hundred to several thousand. Oklahoma has sold 55,000 in 20 years.

Whether or not to purchase a lifetime license is an individual's decision, but if you have a tendency to lose things you might want to consider that. A large number of people can't keep track of their passbook from one year to another under the present system.

Poet's Corner THE SEA

What do I hear, I hear the sea What do I see, I see the sea Steering its way among the rocks The waves sing a mournful Song of men lost and never found. Many a man has went to sea Never to hear the last sound Sung by the waves on the rocks. Many and more a resting place Is never to be found In the endless waves At sea.

Fred Bear's Dream

(Written in 1987)

When Fred Bear came to Grayling. He had a piece of land and his dreams. He came to start a company Without much money in his jeans.

He started the Bear Archery Company On a shoestring and a prayer. He had to scrounge around the dump For the metal he found there.

A lot of bed rails he found use for In making up his first machines, But he was a man of purpose Who was following his dreams:

Times were tough but so was Fred. His little company was built On hard work and an active mind. That he taxed to the hilt.

Soon his company was producing The bows that brought him fame They were the best at the time Or they didn't wear his name.

To keep his company going

At times when things were slack. He made television cabinets For Munson on contract. Among the swelling ranks of archers

His equipment soon won fame. If you wanted to use the very best, You looked for Fred Bear's name.

Quality was what Fred wanted-No defective equipment would he send, If it didn't meet his standards In the junk it found its end.

Orders started pouring in. Many people went to work there-For Fred the good times did begin.

Archery hunting was the going thing.

He hunted all over the world. Many trophies fell to his bow. He lived a life we all dream about-Anywhere he wanted-he could go.

Old age is taking its toll, now. Fred is having to slow down. The company has moved to Florida But he's still loved in our town.
